Activity: “My Rose Is Special” 🌹

Inspired by The Little Prince by Antoine de Saint-Exupéry

Recommended Age: 5–10 years old
Duration: 25–30 minutes
Topic: Friendship, love, empathy, and responsibility

1. Objective

To teach children that the people and things we love become special because we dedicate time, attention, and care to them, just as the Little Prince cared for his rose.

2. Materials

- Colored cardstock or construction paper.
- Pre-cut paper petals.
- Crayons and markers.
- Glue.
- A picture of the Little Prince and his rose.

3. Activity Development

Step 1. Let’s Remember the Story (5 minutes)

Show the children a picture of the rose and ask them:

- Why do you think the rose was so important to the Little Prince?
- How did the Little Prince take care of his rose?

Explain that the rose was special to him because he dedicated his time, love, and attention to caring for it.

Step 2. Let’s Create Our Rose (10 minutes)

Give each child several paper petals. Ask them to draw or write kind actions that show how we can care for others, such as listening, sharing, helping, respecting others, and saying thank you.

For younger children, encourage them to draw their ideas instead of writing them.

Step 3. The Little Prince’s Garden (5 minutes)

Ask each child to glue their petals together to create a flower. Once the flowers are ready, place them together on a classroom mural titled “The Garden of Friendship.”

This garden will represent all the kind actions that help friendships and relationships grow.

Step 4. Final Reflection (5 minutes)

Invite some children to share one of the kind actions they included in their roses and explain how they could practice it in their daily lives.

Participation should be voluntary, allowing children to feel comfortable sharing their ideas.

4. Final Message

“Just as the Little Prince cared for his rose, we can also care for our friends, our families, and the people we love. Every kind action makes our garden more beautiful.”

5. Expected Outcome

By the end of the activity, children are expected to recognize the importance of caring for others and understand how small actions, such as listening, helping, sharing, and showing respect, can strengthen friendships and relationships.
